DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because it contains legal phraseology (i.e., "said"). Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

The specification is objected to because it does not contain section headings; for example, "Brief Description of the Drawings," "Detailed Description," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 15-23, 27 and 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wattron (U.S. Patent 5,522,208).

Wattron discloses an agricultural machine having first (23), second (24) and third (18) pivoting axes as claimed (Figure 2). Wattron also discloses an adapter and spindle (Figures 1 and 3, for example). Wattron does not teach the jaw; however, it is well known to use a jaw having the claimed arrangement in order to ease attachment and disengagement of the implement from the tow vehicle. For this reason, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used a jaw having a vertical, widening opening.

Art Unit: 3671

Regarding claims 16-20 and 28, Wattron teaches the claimed elements.

Regarding claim 21, it is standard practice to have the opening on a jaw on a towed implement extending downward to prevent disengagement; therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used this configuration in order to minimize the likelihood of accidental disengagement of the implement from the tow vehicle.

Regarding claims 22, 23 and 27, given the use of a jaw in the device, claim limitations would be met. With respect to claim 23, see Figure 3.

Claim 24 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wattron as applied above, and further in view of Geisthoff (U.S. Patent 3,961,677).

Wattron does not teach the frustoconical shape. Geisthoff teaches this arrangement (5, 6, Figure 1, for example) to be useful in centering an attachment between a tractor and an implement. Given the use of jaw mechanisms, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used the shape of Geisthoff as the spindle of Wattron in order to facilitate centering.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 25 and 26 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
